1 Mansfield mural project

A 462 foot long mural I designed and painted for the town of Mansfield MA. The mural depicts the history of Mansfield using two different methods, the first is a complex allegorical trompe l'oeil section (approx. 150 ft) and the second is an elaborate historical narrative painting. The painting was initially conceived in my sketchbook then scanned and collaged in Photoshop. During the approval process I made several presentations for the consideration of the town council, the historical society and the citizens of Mansfield. My presentations included full color renderings, power point presentations, and a scale model.

The giant painting is located adjacent to the Mansfield train station and can be seen in great detail on google maps and if you view the street view on your computer you can go back in time and see the mural at different stages of completion.

57 chauncy st Mansfield, MA

I began working on this project early 2011. Late in the year of 2012 the project was approved and painting was to begin in June of 2013. For the next three years i worked from June to October painting the mural and finally signed it in October of 2015.

For my 15 months of painting and year long preparation I was awarded the Mansfield historical society's historical preservation award, a proclamation from the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and the entire mural committee including myself were recognized again by the House of Representatives with a proclamation for community enrichment.

Although the budget was small I worked myself into the ground for this project considering the size (20k went to supplies and scissor lift and supply storage rentals and assistant fees) since it was my home down and i wanted it to be great.

2 Brothers Marketplace weston

The Bothers Marketplace is a branch of Roche brothers.

When this store opened in 2016 I was hired to create the graphics above the shelves on the interior perimeter of the building. All the graphics were then hand painted onto the white brick. I also painted a 10'x17' black and white mural on the buildings exterior.

The interior big wall is 70ft long and the smaller one is 50ft long.

The outside mural took 7 days the inside work took 2 weeks.

The mural is a painting of a photo from the Weston historical society. The image shows the two women who started the tradition of using the local horse trough as a four season flour pot. The tradition continues today and the ladies of the garden club do a great job, always colorful and creative.

3 Brothers Marketplace Medfield

The black and white photo was painted in a Sepia tone, gray scale blend. The photo painted depicts the way the old Medfield lords store, a local favorite (now BMP Medfield) looked in the 30s. I always enjoy bringing history to life with paint. There is an unmistakable look in the eye of the viewer who remembers the way it looked, it's often followed by the best stories.

6 Trompe l'oeil Raynham

To celebrate the life of his wife I was hired to paint a mural lining the back wall of the garage housing his most car collection. The objects and features of the mural pay tribute to their travels and his late wife's favorite car. From the random trinkets that adorn the scene to the shapes of broken up plaster this mural is loaded with symbolism and hidden secrets.

7 Trompe l'oeil North kingstown

Another trompe l'oeil mural this one is was an homage to Lime rock racetrack. My clients favorite place. This was a complex illusion to pull off so in this case I made a scale model. (secretly i just love making scale models) Personally i think the mural looked even better once the Porsches were back in the garage.

Landscape Architecture

8 working farm

A 200 acre site devoted to the clients vision of a working farm that also adhered to the natural beauty and shape of the coastal property. The project incorporated the concept of farm-to-table, such as planting orchards, apiary focused meadows, edible gardens and a free range chicken area.

9 Boutique Hotel

The historic mansion of Glenmere, original designed by architects Carrere and Hastings, prominently sits overlooking Glenmere Lake. Portions of the original landscape had originally been designed by Beatrix Farrand, Landscape Designer, and the influence of her work there is still felt through the broader site's gently rolling terrain.. To preserve the residential character, Morgan Wheelock discretely sited parking and service areas away from the main core of the mansion, allowing these highly visible spaces to be reclaimed for garden spaces. A series of thematic gardens, event terraces, and activity areas were designed to accommodate contemporary uses. Vibrant materials and forms were sought as a nod to Tuscan architecture.
